

Division commissioner

Role

Lead a team of dedicated, skilled volunteers to deliver high-quality guiding. Champion Girlguiding's values, promote a positive image of the organisation, represent the division at county level, and encourage opportunities for volunteers and members.

You'll help girls and volunteers build confidence and skills while ensuring members have a voice. You'll also meet new people, challenge yourself and have fun—and you won't have to do it alone. The role can be shared, and a division team can be created so that some commissioner tasks can be delegated.

How much time does it take?

There's no single answer—it depends on how you build your team and delegate responsibilities. You can shape the team around your own skills and working style; what suited the current commissioner may not suit you.

Personal qualities

A woman aged 18 or over who is, or is willing to become, a Girlguiding member and is passionate about guiding. You should be able to manage your time, prioritise tasks, communicate clearly, lead a team effectively, handle difficult situations, use digital tools confidently, make sound decisions, and motivate and inspire others.

Term of appointment

The initial appointment is for 3 years, with the option to serve a further 2-year term.

Reports to

County commissioner

Works with

Division team members, district commissioners within the division, county team members, and county executive team members when serving as a county trustee.

Responsibilities

- Act with integrity and discretion.
- Lead a team of dedicated, skilled volunteers to deliver high-quality guiding across the division.
- Keep your required training up to date and complete additional training as needed.
- Support district commissioners across the division, members and volunteers.
- Ensure volunteers and members understand and follow the Girlguiding Code of Conduct.
- Address division problems or concerns promptly.
- Promote and grow guiding within the division in partnership with the division media and communications team member.
- Represent the division at external events and promote a positive image of Girlguiding.
- Encourage and support division events, and assist with district events when needed.
- Present qualifications and awards to girls and volunteers at celebration events, as required.
- Use the dedicated county email account for all division-related communications.
- Organise and chair regular division meetings, ensuring minutes are recorded and circulated.
- Share information from national, regional and county teams across the division as requested.
- Attend termly county operations team meetings.
- Prepare a written contribution to the county annual report.
- Serve as the division's main contact on GO.
- Ensure every district in the division keeps accurate accounts that are independently reviewed each year.
- Ensure division subscriptions are paid on time.
- Follow the relevant processes when approving the creation, merger or closure of units and districts.
- Approve award nominations for district commissioners within the division.
- Review and approve residential event notifications (RENs).

May also

- Act as a trustee for Girlguiding Hertfordshire and attend quarterly county executive team meetings. Taking an active role in decision making for the county.
- Where there is a division owned property:
 - Manage the property.

- Create and maintain a property committee.
- Ensure the division is registered as a charity and keep accounts
- Ensure that trustees have indemnity insurance and opportunities for training, events and activities to members and volunteers
- Manage relationships with all stakeholders.

Support and training

Regular online training is available for commissioners. Division commissioner mentors Sue Beswick and Janet Eavis will guide you through your first 6 months and answer any questions. You can also connect with all division commissioners through a WhatsApp group. The outgoing commissioner and volunteers across the division—including people you already know and others you have yet to meet—will provide further support.